Special Session Called To Pay Out-Of-State Vets

Governor Bert Combs Wednesday called a Special Session of the Legislature for Monday, September 19th to eliminate the residence requirement for the veterans bonus.

Combs proclamation said the Legislators will assemble "to consider the subject herein mentioned, and only said subject and only to the extent herein mentioned." The controversial residence requirement caused a storm of protest during the regular session of the Legislature when Republicans walked out of the House of Representatives after the administration rammed through a bonus law containing strict residence requirements. At that time Combs said it would be impossible to pay Kentucky natives who entered the service from this state but who have since moved out because of the high cost.

Cries of protest have arisen throughout the state since then and veterans have organized out-of-state groups to try to eliminate the residency requirement of Nov. 3 when Kentucky voters approved a constitutional amendment to pay a bonus to veterans of four wars to see if it can be removed. Combs said that he was not in position to go into details on the cost of paying additional veterans. "I will have a detailed statement for the Legislature."

The Legislature must remain in session a minimum of five days since three readings or any action are required in each chamber. Combs would not speculate on how soon or how long the special session would last, saying that "I expect it to be done as quickly as possible. I am confident the members will complete their work and adjourn as soon as it can be done." Asked if his decision was based on possible political consequences in the Nov. 8 election, Combs said "I have no idea if it will have any effect on the November election." He said a great many things were considered in calling the special session and that he could not pinpoint all the reasons. "I have said all the time that when I obtained sufficient information on the cast, I would make a decision." The governor said, "I tried to take a sort of cross section nose count of typical members of the Legislature but I did not attempt to sound out a majority on their feelings about the special session. I just asked some of the members I thought were typical."

Red Devils Tie

South Fulton, which in two football games this year has struck for spectacular touchdowns runs, did it again Friday night against Ridgely in the first quarter but then the Red Devils allowed their opponents to tie them. A mistake cost them a TD. That's the way the game wound up 7-all.

Again Friday night it was the masterful, running of Donald Parchman, with a quick moving line in front of him, that gave the South Fulton score.

Next Friday night the South Fulton men open the season on their newly-completed home field and their opponent will be Greenfield.

You see, we promised the children that we would play the tape on the air so that they could hear their voices and the fun they had at the party and I announced on the air that it would be played back at 9:30 a. m. the next day. We played it back at that time all right, and fully intended to play it again that afternoon, but that's where the trouble came in. The tape that the party was recorded on somehow went astray between broadcast time at 9:30 and that afternoon and that was the greatest calamity that has happened at WFUL since the storm blew the transmitter off the air.

At the football game Friday night I'll bet you every child at that birthday party came up to me with fire and sadness in their eyes to remind me that at 9:30 in the morning they were in school. That's a real shame and I am sorry that it happened that way. I asked Margaret if we couldn't do the birthday party over, but somehow she didn't cotton up to the idea at all. I want to make a public apology.

The most unlikely moment in the unlikely career of Sam Siegel, America's greatest pants maker, arrived unannounced on a warm June afternoon last year.

Sam's forebears might have called it a miracle.

In Carroll county, they called it "Sam Siegel Day."

More than 3000 natives of the area jammed a playground in Bruceton to proclaim Sam Siegel—who came there as an European

South Fulton's Great Team Of 1922 To Be Guests At Home Game Friday

No poet or historian can put into words the emotions that will be prevalent at the new football stadium in South Fulton Friday night when the "old grads" sit in the grandstand and watch, for the first time, a game played on the new and modern football field in South Fulton. Adding sentiment to the gala occasion will be the presence, as special and honored guests the great and unbeaten football teams of yesteryear, and particularly the team of 1922, which was the unbeaten football team of that year.

Principal Lester Betty, leaving no stone unturned to make the event Friday night a memorable one, has enlisted the help of all former students to get together the team members of the team of 1922 and former team members and citizens have supplied the information.

"The Great Team of 1922", the unbeaten, highly publicized team of that year still makes its interest known to the South Fulton team and will be around Friday to add their cheers to the dedication ceremonies and event. The team members of the South Fulton football team of 1922 were: Hughie Butt, James Jonakin, Doc Adams, Marvin Reasons, Bones Forrest, Ralph Croft, Tom Farbow, Lowell Valentine and Boots Rogers. Other members of the team were: Morris, (first name unknown), Collins (first name unknown), Uel Killebrew, Bard Hodges, Paul Chambers, J. D. Weaver, Doris Valentine, Ned Jonakin and David Willingham.

And when the strong and efficient football team of 1960 dashes out on the field Friday night to play Greenfield there will be other memories of 1920 when South Fulton defeated the high and mighty Greenfield team of 1920. It was called the upset of the upsets and members of the team were: Boots Rogers, Uel Killebrew, Lowell Valentine, Joe Bennett, Maxwell McDade, Bones Forrest, Ralph Croft, Marvin Reasons and Collins, Hamlet and Brown, whose first names could not be learned.

Linda Cardwell Of South Fulton To Be In Cast For About Year

When the South Fulton ninth grader registered recently, one member of the class was missing.

Miss Linda Cardwell, 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Cardwell, is a patient in the Baptist hospital in Memphis and will not be able to enter high school this fall.

Linda has been a patient in the hospital for six weeks and she is in a cast from her chin to her knees. She is being treated for curvatures of the spine, and this week she will be put in another cast for from two to four weeks. Surgery will then be performed and she will again be put in a cast. It will be from nine months to a year before the final cast is removed.

Her mother is staying with her day and night at the hospital, and Linda is cheerful despite missing a whole year of school. Her grandmother, Mrs. E. S. Scott, said, "Everybody here has been so kind and thoughtful and without their help, none of us could have faced it."

It is hoped that everybody here, especially Linda's South Fulton schoolmates, will remember her often with cards, letters to keep her spirits up.

Her address is Room 428-M, Fourth Floor, Baptist hospital, Memphis, Tenn.

Hickman Insurance Man Is Listed As Apparent Suicide

The body of Henry Eugene Henderson, 26, Hickman Rt. 2, was found Saturday morning in a thickly wooded area about 150 feet from the river near No. 4 mile post of the Hickman levy.

He died of an apparent self-inflicted bullet wound in the right side of the head, authorities said.

The body was found at about 8 o'clock by Doyle George, Hickman Rt. 3, while he was checking cattle in the area. George said he saw Henderson's car parked on the levy about 200 yards from where the body was found. His papers and a considerable amount of collection money was found in the car.

No reason has been given for the apparent act by Henderson, and Coroner Walter Voelpel said further investigations will be made and a hearing will probably be held this week.

Keen Johnson Cites 169 Republican Vetoes In Speech To Young Demos Here

Former Governor Keen Johnson is campaigning in far western Kentucky this week and included Fulton and Hickman in his informal hand-shaking tour. The candidate for the United States Senate renewed acquaintances with many of his old friends and made new ones as he visited down-town stores and factories to seek support for his race against Republican John Sherman Cooper. The distinguished, tall Kentuckian, a native West Kentuckian, appeared enthusiastic and campaigned tirelessly to personally meet the voters in this predominantly Democratic county.

Arriving in Fulton about three o'clock on Tuesday, after a tour of the courthouse and other business places in Hickman he met with a small group of Democratic leaders at the Derby Cafe and attorney and president of the Young Democrats of Kentucky in addressing a dinner meeting of the group at the Sapphire Room of Smith's Cafe. Mr. Johnson rapped his Republican opponent by citing the record of the Eisenhower Administration in the fields of foreign relations; labor and benefits for the farmer.

"The Republicans point with pride to the accomplishments of the Eisenhower Administration while failing to mention that every worthwhile and beneficial legislation accruing to the American public in the past eight years has been passed by a Democratic Congress," he said. "If and when my Republican opponent comes to Fulton," he said, "ask him about the 169 vetoes by President Eisenhower in legislation that would have greatly benefited each of you

FULTON HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

By Karen Dublin

The biggest news this week is our annual magazine drive. As most of you know, the proceeds from the sales go to the Fulton High Athletic Department. Also, the class who sells the most subscriptions and raises the most money has their candidate for Homecoming Queen elected. There is always a great feeling of class and home room spirit during the drive, not only because of the queen contest, but also because the high salesmen each day, gets to carry the trophy, a large stuffed, shocking-pink dog, around with him all day. The high salesmen at the end of the drive, get a chance at a number of good prizes. The homecoming queen candidates are chosen by the football team. Of course, being a senior, I am prejudiced, but I would like to urge you all to buy a magazine from a Fulton HI student and help support the athletic program of the school.

Well, last Friday night the Bulldogs opened their football season by battling Russellville to a 0-0 tie. This was an important game since both Fulton and Russellville are rated high in the Class A, Region 1 group. This week, the team travels to Sharon, Tenn. and meets the Eagles in a game starting at 8:00 p. m. Everyone come on down to Sharon and support the Bulldogs.

Jimmy Dixon, a former student of Fulton HI, reached the finals of the 1960 Industrial Arts Awards Competition, held in Dearborn, Michigan, by the Ford Motor Company. His entry was a drum table. He received a Certificate of Recognition.

The KENNEL, Fulton HI newspaper, has received an International First Place Award with a grade of B plus in the Quill and Scroll's Critical Service Report. This is the second highest award that can be given, and is usually won by larger schools with older newspapers, and more experienced staffs. The KENNEL received 864 points out of a possible 1000. It is hoped that an even higher rating can be achieved this year, since a Journalism class has been added to the

Fulton Council Meets Tuesday

Doran Colley, representing the Church of Christ, appeared again before the Fulton City Council Tuesday night asking the council to rezone Second and Carr Street to Commercial, so that the church can enlarge its building. Mrs. Elizabeth Milner and Charles Binford, property owners, appeared protesting the rezoning move.

The council sent the matter back to the Zoning Adjustment Board. The Hemco Engineers appeared with plans for new sewers on Wells Avenue and a large delegation appeared protesting this move. The city decided to leave Wells Avenue out, and the street will not be served with sewers.

The council voted to transfer the beer license from 201 Commercial Avenue to 501 Kentucky Avenue.

A street light will be installed between the bridge and Carr Street on Commercial Avenue, the council decided and a lengthy discussion was held on the new airport for Fulton. The council voted to take no further action until some means is made to raise the $25,000 needed for the city's part in construction of the airport.

Miss Susan Bushart Heads Young Demos

The queen will be elected by the class selling the most magazine subscriptions and will be named next week.

Two Important Kentucky Questions

Principal interest in the election of next November 8 is bound to be centered upon the presidential, senatorial and representative races.

However, citizens of Kentucky have two questions of statewide significance to decide at the polls which are of paramount importance. It would be a mistake to permit them to be overshadowed or neglected in the national discussions preceding the election.

The first is the proposal for calling a constitutional convention. And the second is a bond issue for roads and parks, which the voters will accept or reject.

The 69-year-old state constitution should be revised to fit the needs of Kentucky today. By the terms of the question to be submitted to the people on November 8, this revision would be limited and the convention is authorized, can only consider the special fields of change outlined.

After the convention completes its work, the resulting changes would have to be submitted to the people for approval or disapproval at a later

The proposed $100 million bond issue would provide $90 million for state highway funds and $10 million for park development.

From the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, Kentucky will receive $160 million allocation for 1961, 1962 and 1963. The state must provide matching funds in order to take full advantage of the allocation. Unless the bond issue is approved by the voters there will not be enough money for this purpose.

Kentucky's need for interstate, intra-state and local roads requires no elaboration. Upon their development depends the economic growth of many sections and particularly of Eastern Kentucky.

In the next two months there will be much discussion of the constitutional convention and of the bond issue proposals. This should be given the attention it deserves and we propose to present both matters in greater detail from time to time.

'Quitting School' Hurts Job Chances

If you're a teenager who's decided to keep that summer job and not go back to school, better think again! That decision to go on working may cost you $100,000, says Joe Mobley, UK Extension specialist in rural development.

Studies have shown that a high school graduate earns an average of $100,000 more in a lifetime than those who do not finish high school. The college graduate can expect to earn at least $175,000 more than he would have had he "quit" before finishing high school.

Finding a good job will be easier if you have a high school diploma, Mobley points out. Most Kentucky boys and girls will have to leave the state to find work. Young people from other states will be looking for work there, too - and 70 percent of them will have a high school education. Yet in the 1960's, only 40 percent of Kentucky's high-school-age youth are expected to graduate from high school.

Industries are looking for more training in the persons they hire. According to the U. S. Department of Labor, the same number of unskilled workers will be needed in the 60's as in the 50's. Yet the demand for skilled workers will go up 24 percent and for clerical and sales workers, 27 percent. And three million more professional and technical workers will be needed in the 60's - a rise of 41 percent.

So the more education you have, the more jobs will be open to you and they'll be better-paying jobs, too, Mobley notes. On the average, professional and technical workers, who will be most in demand, have the most education - and make the most money. This holds true on down the line to the unskilled workers, who average the least amount of education and the least take-home pay—and no more unskilled workers will be needed in the 1960's than were needed during the past ten years.

SERMONETTE OF THE WEEK

Too Much For Your Child

By Robert F. Odenwald, M. D.

WHAT'S WRONG with doing "too much" for your child? Isn't that what any conscientious parent would do? Perhaps you have had a hard time in your life and had to do without things you wanted badly. Probably you made mistakes which you might have avoided if your parents had guided you each step of your way.

So you want to give your child necessities and comforts which he can't obtain for himself. You want to guide him in order to keep him from seriously hurting himself.

YOUR MAIN JOB as a mother or father, however, is to help him develop habits and attitudes which will make him a normal, happy adult. He must learn to depend upon himself, to take responsibility, to get along without many things he would like to have but can't afford, to be willing to sacrifice his own interests at times for other people.

WHEN A CHILD does not have everything done for him, he learns to take in stride the many disappointments he will face as an adult. He won't feel that the world is falling apart because his employer won't give him the raise he expects. He will shrug his shoulders when the family budget can't fit in a new set of golf clubs because a new washing machine for his wife is more necessary.

You will have to decide for yourself where to draw the line between what is necessary and what is too much for your child.

Here is a good rule. Let him do everything that he should be able to do at his age. To apply this rule, you need only watch other children or read up on what normal youngsters do for themselves at each stage of their development.

Let your child suffer small failures in order to learn. For instance, he will often fall when he begins to walk. But he learns that he can get up and walk again as though nothing happened—a lesson that will help him meet the unavoidable disappointments and defeats he will face throughout his life.

DURING WORLD WAR II, Army psychiatrists learned to recognize that danger signals were flying when a young man came to the induction center escorted by his mother. Marriage counselors mark down sharply the prospects for happiness when the prospective bride or bridegroom insists upon living with parents. It's usually proof that the man or woman feels unqualified to handle everyday problems without help. They depend too much upon the older generation to be a successful marriage partner.

THERE ARE MANY THINGS that parents can and should do for their children—but the most important thing they can do is to let them experience life's trials and disappointments and strengthen their character by overcoming them.

A young Mayfield couple were married recently and left on their wedding trip. At a Fulton service station, they stopped to get the signs washed off of their car. The service station attendant told the couple that they didn't wash cars, but a young lad at the station came forward and offered to do the job.

The newly-weds went out to the Derby for dinner, while their car was being washed. Considerable time passed and the couple had eaten. A call was made to the service station and they were told that the young boy had left at least 15 minutes before with the car.

Another period of time elapsed and the couple got worried. Finally, the police were called and a search was begun for the missing boy and car.

After an hour-and-a-half, the lad showed up at the Derby with the car. He had been joy riding, giving the couple time to enjoy their dinner.

The Cisco Kid, popular star of a TV series of the same name, was a visitor in Fulton Friday night and delighted a crowd of about 150 boys and girls in front of The Derby by handing out autograph photos.

The TV star, whose real name is Duncan Renaldo, had dinner at The Derby, and according to Hugh Fly, he had difficulty in eating his dinner, there were so many autograph seekers.

Later as he started to leave he found the crowd of 150 youngsters outside waiting for him, as the word had spread like wildfire. The trailer which carried his horse, Diablo, was parked out front and it was in this manner that the young fry knew he was in Fulton.

We were so glad to see Clement Hicks of Detroit, a former Fultonian, over the holidays. Clement is now sales manager of a large automobile agency in Detroit. He was here visiting his parents out Dukedom way.

We were saddened at the passing of our good friend, Mrs. Lee Rucker. She was a very fine lady and friendly with everyone. Over the years, Mrs. Rucker was kind to me, and every time I had occasion to write something about her or her family, she always showed her appreciation with a nice gift, or took me out to dinner. Her many friends in Fulton and the surrounding area, will certainly miss her, and extend to her family, sincere sympathy.

We had a wonderful time Sunday at the annual family reunion of the Bailey clan at Dublin, Ky. A large crowd attended. Some of the relatives attended the Baptist church, where our cousin is pastor, while others arrived about noon. All attending arrived with large baskets of food.

"Steamers the City of Madison and J. D. Perry were hard aground."

In Louisville, the Daily Courier reported the building of a giant steamboat, named the J. F. Fargoud. (Named for a Creole planter of Louisiana) The boat is 225 feet long, 38 ft. beam, and 33 ft. floor. In addition, the guards will extend over the side 16 ft. on each side making it possible for the ship to carry as much as 3,000 bales of cotton. THE COURIER says that the stem of the Fargoud is a single piece of oak fully six feet thick. The builders, Messrs. Howard, "say the Fargoud is the finest ship yet built in the west." The Fargoud will be used on the Ouachita-New Orleans run.

The DIXIE, A Captain Buckley has named his new ship the "Dixie" instead of the "Malta" as first planned. The DAILY COURIER took the trouble to explain that "Dixie is the name familiar to all Southern planters, it being the burthen (name) of a popular ditty." The Dixie was to be used on the Red River trade.

During August of 1960, there were barbecues and speaking everywhere. Some speakers, said one editor, "were dull enough to address themselves to the reflecting listeners (the thinking people). Other speakers entertained the people by lambasting the daylighters out of the opposition." (This was not a time for thinking people... hard speech and hard action found followers. The thinking people were on the side-lines, observing but not influencing. Emotions and not intelligence was beginning to control most actions.)

The Louisville COURIER reprinted the following from another paper on the 24th of August. SLAVE INSURRECTION IN VIRGINIA. In Halifax County, Virginia, six slaves belonging to a

Mr. Samuel Hairston decoyed the overseer into the woods where they had already prepared his grave... they said to him: "There is your grave. You have fifteen minutes to make your peace with God, or to land in hell." "Quick as thought," said the paper, "The overseer drew his Colt's revolver, killed four of the ruffians dead at his feet, shot the fifth through the abdomen, seeing which the sixth took to his heels, etc."

In California, an elephant died of a broken heart. Two elephants, Victoria and Albert, belonging to a circus, had to cross a river by swimming. (The other parts of the circus crossed on a ferry) The waters of the river, the Tansanough, was so swift and deep that the elephants were washed far downstream, and became separated. Victoria thought, the circus men believed, that Albert was lost, but the other elephant had landed at another place. Victoria grieved terribly by a lashing of her trunk and screaming, so that even when after some time Albert was reunited with her, she was still a nervous wreck. The two elephants performed at another town, during which Victoria died. Two doctors dissected the body and found the animal was in perfect health except that the heart was burst open. It was thought Victoria died of a broken heart at the loss of her mate. She was buried at the sight of the circus ring, and her grave was visited by a host of people. "True love!"

Kentucky had a state-wide teacher's meeting at Bowling Green. Subject of discussion was: "What ought a course in our common schools to embrace" That night the great crowd listened to an address by Prof. Adams from Masonic University whose topic was "The Use and Abuse of The Intellect." THE COURIER reporter said "The effort of the speaker was an able one, and on every side we hear the highest encomiums passed on the speaker."

Mrs. Paul ('Jo') Westpheling

Jo Westpheling, co-owner and General manager of Radio Station WFUL, "grew up" as a newspaperwoman in her home town of Clarksdale, Mississippi. As business manager of the Clarksdale daily newspapers for a number of years, she early learned the public's thirst for news, information and service.

Applying the same techniques to WFUL, her direction has produced one of the outstanding stations for its size in the Mid-South because WFUL stresses all three—seven days a week from sun-up to sundown.

Jo believes in two basic principles and never swerves from them: (1) that WFUL is in business to serve its listeners, whether they be in Fulton, at Clinton, in Cadis or in Southeastern Missouri, and (2) that Radio is the strongest and most widely-reaching advertising medium available in this area. What's more, she is prepared to prove both of these without a moment's hesitation.

At the same time, it goes without saying that Jo and WFUL are geared to assist Fulton and South Fulton in any project, and with any service that can be provided. WFUL AM and FM are truly "the twin voices of the twin cities".

Make 1270 on your radio dial your daily listening post and share with us the pleasure of working together for the betterment of our community life.

Miss Brenda Sue Brown Becomes Bride Of Richard Dale Breeden

By Agatha Gayle Voelgel

A wedding of dignity and unusual beauty was that of Miss Brenda Sue Brown and Richard Dale Breeden, which was solemnized at three o'clock in the afternoon of Sunday, the twenty-eighth of August at the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, with the Reverend Oakley Woodside, the pastor of the church, officiating and using an impressive double-ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Tucker Brown of Union City, Tennessee and Tucker Brown of Fulton. Mr. Breeden is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Breeden of Fulton.

The altar section of the sanctuary was most attractive with decorations in sapphire blue and white. Centering the chancel was a spreading arrangement of white and blue delphinium, in a tall floor basket; blue and white satin bows were placed at the base of the flowers. Radiating from the floral arrangement were graduated candelabra holding tall blue candles. The candelabra were twined with fern and caught with satin bows of blue and white. Connecting the candelabra and the floral arrangement were double festoons of heavy white silk cords which fell in double knots from the farthest candelabra. A white Priedieu was ornamented with satin bows. Similar bows marked the reserved pews.

As the guests assembled, James Reed, organist, presented a program of nuptial music. He also used the traditional wedding marches from Wagner and Mendelssohn. Miss Joar, Carter, Soprano, sang "Through the Years" (Youmans) and "At Dawning" (Cadman) preceding the ceremony and the Malotte "Lord's Prayer", following the pastoral prayer.

The lovely Titian haired bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She wore a beautiful original formal wedding gown of ivory peau de soie and imported Chantilly lace. The closely fitted lace bodice featured a deep portrait neckline which was outlined with the natural scallops of the lace. The long sleeves terminated in points over her hands. The sleeves and the bodice were fastened with tiny silk and lace covered buttons. The peau de soie skirt was voluminous with gathers and developed into a fan shaped train. The skirt was ornamented with hand applied lace motifs scattered over the entire skirt and the train. Her tiered, tulle of bridal illusion fell from a tiny scalloped crown made of iridescent sequins and seed pearls. Her jewelry was a pearl pendant and matching earrings which were a gift of the groom. Her bridal bouquet was fashioned of a pure white orchid surrounded with stephanotis and puffs of illusion.

Miss Katie Brown attended her sister as maid-of-honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Ruth Louise Butts, Miss Suzanne Johnson, Mrs. Bobby Halley, and Miss Susan Bushart. They wore identical dresses of sapphire blue pure silk chiffon made over matching tulle. The sleeveless bodice was designed with a deep draped cowl which encircled the portrait neckline. The waist was ornamented with a crushed cummerbund. The skirt was gathered. They wore matching satin slippers. The head-dresses were double bands of shade blue flowers with circular tulle veils. They also wore short white gloves. They were iridescent crystal pendants which were gifts of the bride. The bouquets were Colonial nosegays of large Shasta Daisies surrounded with blue satin frills and tied with narrow blue satin ribbons. Little Miss Gail Ashley, a cousin of the bride, was the flowergirl. She wore a dainty frock of white organza with lace bands ornamenting the puffed sleeves, the collar and the edge of the bouffant skirt. She had a bandeau of blue flowers and carried a white basket from which she scattered rose petals in the path of the bride.

Leroy Sawyer served Mr. Breeden as best man. Ushers were Ronnie McAllister, Dan Shanklin, John Jackson and David Pirtle, a cousin of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Brown wore an afternoon frock of light blue silk organza. The bodice was encrusted with apurpled shaded-blue flowers. The skirt was gathered. She wore a feather hat in shades of blue. Her shoes matched her dress and she wore long white gloves. Her corsage was of deep pink carnations.

ogy to all those nice young ladies for disappointing them and I promise that at the first opportunity I'll look around for a party at which they are in attendance and do the whole thing over again just for them.

If you heard that tape recording I think you will agree that little Mary Jo did a fairly nice job of keeping the interview going. When Margaret Homra heard it she said:

"When do you have time to teach Mary Jo how to do things like that." Of course there was no coaching or teaching Mary Jo or R. Paul on matters like that. The poor young 'uns have been exposed to my constant chatter all their lives. They think that's the way to talk.

FULTON HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

By Karen Dublin

Well, the big day has finally come and gone. There was plenty of activity—we met our new teachers; the boys hunted around for any new girls; we bought our new books; the girls looked around for any new boys; and everybody made as much noise as possible while they still could.

Speaking of new books, there were plenty of those this year. All the English books were changed, and so were some of the commerce books. Of course, with journalism and French being offered for the first time this year, there were more new books to go with them. All in all, it was a very expensive day for most of the students.

The band has been practicing since Monday, August 22, and although there are only about 20 or 25 members, they make plenty of noise. And the nice thing about it is, most of that noise sounds good! The Alma Mater is really pretty, and the fight song is enough to raise anyone's school spirit to a new high. They will make their first appearance for this year, at the football game Friday night. So everyone come on out and see them in action.

By the way, anyone wishing to become a member of the band, please contact Mrs. Hernon or a band member as soon as possible.

One of the junior class officers has left Fulton. David Cunningham, vice president of the class has left with his family for Chattanooga, Tenn., where his father will be associated with the Church of Christ there. Good luck in the future David!

Don't anybody forget the football game Friday night. The Bulldogs looked very good in their scrimmage with Union City and so there are high hopes for another great season. The game with Russellville starts at 8, so everybody in Fulton, come on out and support the Bulldogs!!

Well, I guess that's all for this week. We have a vacation next Monday (Labor Day), so maybe after a day's rest, I can wrack my poor overworked brain and come up with something better next week!

BULLDOGS VS SEARON

The Fulton High Bulldogs will play Sharon there this Friday night, Sept. 29. Game time is 7:45 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Breeden Are Hosts At Buffet Supper For Wedding Party

By Agatha Gayle Voelpel

On Saturday, the twenty-seventh of August, nineteen-hundred and sixty, Mrs. Rosalie Brown honored her daughter, Miss Brenda Brown and her wedding attendants with a bridesmaids' luncheon at the Billmore in Union City, Tennessee.

The long table was most attractive with a stylized centerpiece of frosted grapes and pastel hydrangeas in a tall brass bowl. The bride-elect presented her attendants with gifts. A delicious two-course luncheon was served. For the luncheon Miss Brown wore a sheath dress designed with a white eyelet bodice, with deep neckline and cap sleeves and a black silk shantung skirt and cummerbund. Her accessories were red and her corsage was of rose buds.

The guests included the honoree, Miss Katie Brown, Miss Susan Bushart, Miss Ruth Louise Butts, Miss Suzanne Johnson, Mrs. Robert Hailey, Miss Joan Carter, Miss Lynn Ashley, Mrs. Warren Johnson, Mrs. Walter Voelpel, Mrs. Oliver Kash, Mrs. Paul Ashley, Mrs. Ralph Breeden and the hostess.

Preceding the Breeden-Brown wedding rehearsal at the Cumberland Presbyterian Church on Saturday evening, the twenty-seventh of August, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Breeden, parents of the groom-elect were hosts at a buffet supper in the dining room of the church.

The long buffet table was centered with a handsome arrangement of fruits and flowers in a low spreading brass bowl. A delicious buffet menu was served with the guests seated at smaller tables.

For the dinner, Miss Brown chose a tulle-trimmed frock of light blue cotton with an ambossed design forming stripes on the material. The dress featured a fitted bodice trimmed with narrow white lace and a widely pleated skirt. Her accessories were blue.

The guest list included Miss Brown, Mr. Breeden, Mrs. Rosalie Brown, Mr. Tucker Brown, Mrs. Oliver Kash, Mrs. Paul Ashley, Rev. and Mrs. Oakley Woodside, Miss Ruth Louise Butts, Miss Susan Bushart, Miss Joan Carter, Miss Suzanne Johnson, Mrs. Bobby Hailey, Miss Gail Ashley, Miss Lynn Ashley, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Voelpel, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Shanklin, David Pirtle, John Jackson, Ron-the host and hostesses.

Further Search For Oil Is Dependent On Tests In Obion

Whether the search for oil or gas in Obion county is to be continued will be determined in a few days as our geologists and chemists complete a study and analysis of the information we have acquired so far in the drilling of the wildcat well on the E. C. Sublett farm near the Pleasant Hill church," Monroe Orenduff of Tulsa, Okla., told fellow Rotarians at the Biltmore in Union City Friday noon.

Mr. Orenduff, who has been in this area off and on for almost a year, correlating work of survey teams and obtaining oil leases said:

"This may be my farewell appearance at the Union City Rotary club or it may be really the beginning of a long stay here."

The speaker then declared, "At no time has our personnel had any idea of promoting anybody for one cent in this project. We are financing this search for gas or oil completely out of our own funds."

and those of our associates, and we are not interested in leasing any of the land we have under lease, and we are not interested in selling stock to people of this area. We simply have taken a calculated risk on our chances of finding oil or gas in this area. As for ever investing in an oil venture, I advise you to bear in mind that you could lose and you should not invest unless you can afford to lose. Our information is that we successful oil or gas wells were found in Tennessee last year in 80 attempts. As you can see, this is a one to 40 shot.

"As for us if we miss in Obion county, we will have spent several thousands of dollars. We will then move on to another field and then another field and before we hit we may have a long series of misses. And if we hit anywhere, we must have sufficient acreage under lease so that our production and revenue will be sufficient to make up for all our preceding losses."

Telephone Talk

H. D. HAYES
Your Telephone Manager

Now that fall's knocking on everybody's door, there's a new hustle and bustle around home. Suitcases being dusted off for the trip back to school. Lists being scribbled about fall house cleaning. Talk of getting the furnace in order and other pre-winter repairs. Yes, indeed, life sure gets busier when fall rolls around!

Have you ever thought what a big help your phone is with all these things going on? Take Long Distance, for instance. If you've got a young one going off to college for the first time, nothing helps cure homesickness like a call from home that first week. Or, in the case of the left-behind gym shoes, what's the quickest way to notify the family? Long Distance, of course.

And, for those of you who have teenagers at home, here's a thought. Wouldn't an extension phone in his or her room be a great thing for you? Oh, I know your teenager would enjoy it—fall brings on a rash of dances, dates and school outings—but think of your peace if all those long and very important conversations could go on in the privacy of his or her room, without disturbing the rest of the family. (Just call our business office for all the details.)

Here's one more thing I'd like to remind you of—those handy Yellow Pages in the back of your telephone directory. With fall house cleaning coming up, it's the greatest way to "hunt" all over town for what you need. Cleaning supplies, paint, repair people—you name it and you'll find it in your Yellow Pages. Count time and steps saved when you use them.

Well, today's column just serves as a simple reminder that telephone service is always ready to help you and your family in many ways. We hope it serves you often.

Carlisle - Speed Wedding Solemnized

Miss Patricia Ann Carlisle, daughter of Mrs. Helen Carlisle and the late Buel B. Carlisle of Fulton, became the bride of Kenneth Ray Speed, son of Willie Speed and the late Mrs. Gertie Speed, on Thursday evening, August the eighteenth, nineteen hundred and sixty.

The impressive double ring ceremony was performed at seven o'clock in the home of the bride's mother with the First Baptist pastor, Rev. Loyd Henderson of Cayce, officiating.

The bride was lovely in a street length royal blue nylon over taffeta with a royal blue nylon streamer in front and a lace insertion at the neckline.

Her shoulder corsage was of white carnations with white satin ribbon. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace with matching earrings.

Miss Marilyn Joyce Hurley was the maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a street length dress of pink cotton, trimmed in white lace. She wore a shoulder corsage of white carnations.

Billy Joe Henderson attended the groom as best man.

The mother of the bride wore navy blue nylon over taffeta with black accessories.

Miss Phyllis Carlisle, sister of the bride, wore a white linen sheath with white accessories.

The bride and groom left Sunday for Memphis where they will make their home at 2625 Union Extension, Memphis.

The bride attended the Fulton City School and the groom attended Fulham High school.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Carlisle of Fulton and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Garber of Arlington.

CATFISH - SIEGEL

immigrant 20 years ago—"the outstanding citizen" of catfish-and-cornbread-loving Carroll county.

Sam, a Jew and once-Polish, is the mayor of Bruceton, a town proudly Protestant and Tennessee.

He was elected recently to an unprecedented second term as president of the Bruceton Lions club.

He is a 32nd degree Mason and the acknowledged prime mover of the city's Masonic lodge.

He is a backer of kid baseball teams, a pusher for bigger and better schools, and a sort of club-house lawyer, doctor and chaplain for any of the numerous community ills that come down the pike.

Today, in Bruceton and in a tight circle of six other nearby towns, Siegel's people make more popularly-priced men's pants and sport coats than anybody in America—and probably in the world.

Sam doesn't look like a doer of great deeds. He's sort of short and stocky. His velvety brown eyes are a little baggy and he is almost bald. When he reads he needs glasses. He doesn't give you the big hello nor does he bowl you over with his personality.

"I'd say that 'day' they gave last year was the biggest thing that's ever happened to me," Sam said one day last week. "It was supposed to be a surprise. Everytime I think of it, I'm surprised it happened."

Sam's voice carries the echo of Warsaw. His Rs get caught in his throat in the manner of speech common to Middle Europeans. In Bruceton—midway between Nashville and Memphis on Highway 70—the accent is as startling as a moose in a monastery.

Lots of people in Carroll county say they would give Sam the shirts off their backs if he needed it—an improbable necessity. Some would even fight for him.

Once, they did. Sam and his plant had been in Bruceton just seven years in 1940 when some 50 organizers of the powerful Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America showed up one morning and barred the entrance to the plant.

Siegel's employees, most of them women and girls from nearby farms, stormed the doorways. After a wild, seven-minute fracas about half of them managed to fight their way into the building and to their sewing machines.

Some of the women had their clothes torn off (they finished out the day wearing the men's clothing they had made). John Hogan, plant superintendent, would up with a mouthful of broken teeth after he jumped in the way of a brick aimed at Sam.

The unionists regrouped to keep the rest of the women out of the factory. And it was then the strange and wonderful thing happened for Sam Siegel.

Farmers from the surrounding country—from Hollow Rock, Trezevant and Biblehill—swarmed out of the hills. There were about 450 of them. They told the union organizers they had come to protect their woman and that they would stay until the union organizers left.

Today there are a many who will argue that the farmers' march was staged simply to protect the women as there are those who insist it was an act of friendship toward a man who had done much to improve the area's standard of living.

Sam won't argue the point. "It doesn't matter much who they were trying to help," he says. "I am part of the community. What's good for them is good for me."

Sam denies he is anti-union. He points out that his company's plants at Dickson and Fulton, Ky., are union shops. He says, "If the people at any of my plants want the union, they can have it."

The people of Bruceton elected him mayor two years ago, choosing him over a "railroad man." This, in a town which was born and reared as a railroad switching point and maintenance center. Sam is unopposed in his reelection next month.

Biggest source of unofficial opposition comes from his wife, Gladys.

"He has enough to do without adding to his responsibilities," Mrs. Siegel said. "But he's a stubborn man."

His stubbornness is becoming legend around Carroll county. It erupts unexpectedly at any time or place.

"My baby had pneumonia out on the farm and the roads were too muddy for the doctor to drive there," said one young woman working at a sewing machine in the plant's acre-big sewing room. "Sam saw me sitting here and crying."

"First thing I knew he had driven his car as close to our farm as he could. Then he got out and sloshed through mud for three miles. He picked up my baby, carried him back through three miles of mud and got him to a doctor."

It's a stubbornness that gets things built. "We needed $10,000 to put in a first class cafeteria at our high school," said Joe Herndon, superintendent of the Bruceton-Hollow Rock school system. "Sam thought the Lions club should raise the money with a raffle ticket sale. We almost have it made now. Sam sold tickets to people from New York to California."

It's a stubbornness that sometimes demands learning. "I got tired of going outside our area for people with schooling," Sam says. "Joe Herndon told me it was because too many of our young people didn't have enough money to go to college—or even to finish high school. I bring some of the boys into the plant during the summer now and give them a chance to earn enough to see them through school."

Any school teacher around Carroll county who wants a summer job at Sam's plant can have one.

Every school principal within 50 miles of Bruceton knows all he has to do to make sure all his boy students have enough warm clothes to wear is to back his car up to Sam's factory. Sam does the rest.

Young lovers who need money for a honeymoon... parents who need money or advice about their children's illness... people who want to know what to do about collecting a judgment after a traffic accident—they all come to Sam.

Sam tells his employees, "Let me help you when you're in trouble." They take him at his word. A few weeks ago he got a call at 1 a. m. to help a man who had a flat tire. Sam drove him home.

Why does he do all this? Sam says he's "just interested in the community."

Herndon, who is Sam's close friend and one of his critics, puts it another way:

"He got out of Poland one step ahead of Hitler," Herndon says. "His father and four of his sisters and brothers didn't make it. Sam hates anything that even comes close to Hitlerism. He hates poverty and ignorance that breed it. 'I think he feels actual pain when he sees a child going without clothes or enough food or enough schooling.'"

But, Herndon says, Sam can be a tremendous pain in the pants. He insists that others get as excited about a project as he is. This breeds a certain amount of resentment.

"The fact that Sam was a foreigner is still resented by a few people," Herndon said. "Foreigners are best tolerated when they are laughable or when they lose. But you can't laugh at Sam—and he seldom loses. Some people won't forgive him that."

Sam came to Bruceton in 1940, as a result of the insistence of an older brother, who had preceded him to America. The brother, Henry I. Siegel had set up factories in Scranton Pa. and in Dickson. He produced a line of men's wearing apparel bearing the initials of the Henry I. Siegel Manufacturing Co.—H. I. S.

By the time of Henry's death a few years ago the company had given up its Scranton operation and set up a ring of seven plants in this area. Besides Bruceton and Dickson they are located at Trezevant, Hohenwald, Gleason and South Fulton, Tenn., and just across the state line at Fulton, Ky. Production has increased each year since the move to Tennessee. Sam Siegel is president of H. I. S., a closed corporation which each week produces 200,000 pair of pants, and thousands of sport coats, suits and casual jackets. The articles retail in the "popular price field" and are well-advertised in slick national men's magazines.

The Bruceton plant, which employs 1100 persons, remains the largest of the group. The Siegels live in a post-war brick home, about a three-minute walk from the plant.

Sam wooed and wed Gladys during a trip to New York 12 years ago. They have four children, Howard, 11; Henry, 9; Marcia, 6, and Susan, 3.

Bruceton has had little in the way of police or fire problems. Both departments are headed by J. C. Caplinger. In fact, Caplinger is a one-man police force. Among his 14 volunteer firemen, Mayor Siegel is one of the most avid.

Among Sam's fetishes—for the past 20 years he has driven into Nashville every two weeks to have his diminishing hairline trimmed by the same barber—is a propensity for picnics and parties.

"Sam is at his best while planning a big fish fry or a dinner honoring somebody," said Nelson Glosson, the city recorder. "He nearly split a seam arranging that Gordon Browning Day we had here a few weeks ago. Everybody had a real time, too, at that Christmas party he had for his employees in June—that was the one to make up for the Christmas party they didn't have time for in December."

A lot of long-time Bruceton residents have viewed the rise of H. I. S. as the area's major industry with unveiled regret. For three decades following 1920, the town's sentiments were strongly linked with the adventures and romance of the railroad.

At one time the NC&StL stopped 22 passenger trains a day there and had a Bruceton payroll of more than a million dollars a year. Now, only two passenger trains a day make stops and the payroll has shrunk to a little more than $60,000 a year.

A lot of old timers remember when the town was called Hollow Rock Junction, or Junction City, or New One and how it finally was named after W. P. Bruce, general manager of the railroad during the 20s.

"I understand there's a move afoot to change the name again," snorted one old timer, "... this time, to Samtown or Siegelville."

I hope everybody got a chance to read the write-up about the bulldogs in the Paducah paper last Friday. It was a real good coverage of the team. Also, I noticed in the Louisville paper last Sunday, that Bill Burnette was named as one of the top halfbacks in the state, and that Fulton was rated third in Class A, Regional 1, behind Murray and Russellville. And all this was written before the first game.

The FHS band looked pretty good at the football game last Friday night. Their marching was especially good. By the way, anyone wishing to join the band should see Mrs. Hernon or a band member as soon as possible.

Well, that's all for now, and don't forget to buy a magazine from an FHS student sometime this week!!!

Mr. Johnson, a high ranking official with the Reynolds Metal Company told his audience of his birthplace in Lyon County in humble surroundings and his residence in Lyon and Crittenden counties until he went off to the University of Kentucky. A newspaper publisher and long-time leader in Democratic circles Mr. Johnson spoke of the dynamic team of John Kennedy for President and Lyndon Johnson for vice-president on the national Democratic ticket and predicted that the Democrats will send a Democratic Senator back to Washington on November 8. Mr. Johnson was introduced by Dr. Ward Bushart, prominent in Democratic politics in Fulton County.

The former Governor was followed on the program by forceful and dynamic Mr. Garrott of Paducah whose brilliant command of words held the rapt attention of the audience. Mr. Garrott, in constant demand as a speaker in Kentucky also predicted a Democratic victory for Kentucky in November. The Paducah attorney was introduced by Al Bushart, president of the newly re-organized Young Democrats Club of Fulton County. It was through the outstanding efforts of young Bushart and his workers that a large crowd of young voters attended the meeting Tuesday night.

Prior to the dinner meeting Mr. Johnson enjoyed seeing many of his old friends at a get-together at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Westpheling on West State Line Road.
